

Virginia Tech Health and Well-being Commitment

A collective commitment to the health and well-being of each other has never been more essential, especially in an on-campus residential living environment. Living on campus at Virginia Tech is a powerful experience that will nurture friendships, facilitate learning, and introduce you to new ideas, experiences and people. Protecting you, your neighbors, and this experience will require the full attention and daily dedication of every resident.

It is for this reason that students who will live in Virginia Tech residence halls are required to sign and abide by this agreement.

The Commitments:

1. I will abide by any health directive issued by the University, or state and local health officials.
2. To prevent the spread of communicable diseases, I understand the importance of personal hygiene (not touching face, washing hands frequently, etc.)
3. I will avoid public spaces if I have symptoms of COVID-19 and contact Virginia Tech's Schiffert Health Center by telephone at 540-231-6444, my local health care provider, or an urgent care facility.
4. If directed to quarantine or isolate by a medical professional or university official, I will do so as long as deemed necessary.
5. I will inform Virginia Tech if I have a positive COVID-19 test or if I have experienced a direct contact situation with an individual with COVID-19.

I understand that failing to comply with these commitments can result in a referral to student conduct and/or termination of my housing contract.

To acknowledge your review and understanding of these commitments, as well as your willingness to abide by the requirements and responsibilities, please enter your student ID number as your digital signature to maintain eligibility for campus housing.

At Virginia Tech, our motto Ut Prosim (That I may serve) is compelling. Your daily sacrifices for the health and safety of your peers will be a daily exercise in living in and toward Ut Prosim. We know there are new expectations to follow now, but to be together we need to work together for the safety of all in our campus community. Now, get ready for an awesome, exciting, life-transforming residential experience. We are so excited to welcome you to Virginia Tech and the Hokie Nation!
